

Private Equity

Private equity funds that maximize the returns on their investments excel at each stage of the portfolio company cycle: identifying—and acquiring—the right target, unlocking portfolio company earnings growth and effecting a successful exit. Andrews Kurth private equity lawyers counsel private equity funds and their portfolio companies in each of these stages, providing advice and assistance that enable fund managers to achieve their investment objectives.

Our private equity lawyers have extensive experience in advising on a broad spectrum of private equity transactions. In 2008 we represented our clients in 21 private equity transactions with an aggregate total value of more than $2 billion.

Deal Experience

Portfolio Company Acquisitions and Dispositions. With one of the nation's top transactional practices, our lawyers are skilled in structuring, negotiating and implementing all manner of private equity transactions. We represent private equity funds in developing and realizing their investment strategies from the initial portfolio company acquisition, through intervening add-on investments, divestments and recapitalizations, to the portfolio company's ultimate disposition or public offering. Private equity transactions span the entire range of types of mergers and acquisitions, and we advise our clients on the different issues that arise with each transaction.

The types of private equity transactions on which we have advised clients include:

- Leveraged/management buy-outs
- Leveraged recapitalizations
- Going private transactions
- Tender offers
- Consolidations and industry roll-ups
- Joint ventures and strategic partnerships
- Equity and debt financings
- PIPE transactions

Capital Markets Leader. Our clients desiring to access the public markets—whether for financing or as a portfolio company exit—benefit from the strength and breadth of our nationally recognized capital markets practice. Andrews Kurth regularly ranks among the nation's top law firms representing issuers and underwriters of public securities offerings. In 2007, we were involved in more than 65 public offerings that helped our clients raise nearly $30 billion in capital. We are also market leaders in structuring master limited partnerships (MLPs), and we have been involved in more than 70 percent of today's existing MLPs.

Co-investments and Strategic Alliances. Whether a transaction involves an equity sponsor seeking co-investors, club deals or other forms of strategic alliances, transactions with multiple equity parties raise issues of control and priority. We are experienced in resolving these issues, and, depending on whether our client occupies a majority or minority position in an investment, we advise on how to best protect our clients' interests.

Private Equity

Distressed Investments. When the target of an acquisition is at or near insolvency or if an existing investment is in financial distress, our private equity lawyers work in tandem with our nationally recognized bankruptcy and restructuring lawyers to secure for our client the most advantageous position in relation to creditors and other stakeholders.

Deal-Making Focus

Our approach in advising on private equity transactions focuses on our clients' entire objectives as opposed to the legal issues alone. We judge the importance of issues to our clients based on their likely real-world effect and present our analysis in this light. Recognizing that the ultimate goal behind every private equity transaction is a successful exit, at every stage of the private equity process we consider the effect of our advice and our clients' actions on the next stage. We strive to assist our clients in consummating the best deal possible from both a legal and business perspective.

Cutting-Edge Advice

As the financial markets fluctuate, so does the relative bargaining leverage of buyers and sellers in the private equity marketplace. The scope and diversity of our private equity practice permit us to stay current on these market trends. We have in-depth experience in the unique issues facing private equity funds, and our private equity lawyers are at the forefront of shaping state-of-the-art practices. We are therefore able to anticipate changes in negotiating strategies from opposing parties and incorporate into the transactions developments favorable to our clients.

Sophisticated Practices

In developing solutions for the range of different issues that confront our clients, our private equity lawyers recruit advisors from other Andrews Kurth practice groups needed for their particular experience. We are known for the sophistication and depth of our different practice groups, and the lawyers in these practices work closely with our transactional team to structure each deal to achieve the best results for our clients.
