The Woodlands has rapidly become Houston's go-to location for corporate headquarters. More than 100 major national and international companies have a presence here. Andrews Kurth established its Woodlands office in 1993 in order to serve its corporate clients on their home turf. Our clients primarily include energy companies and suppliers, public banks and lending institutions, construction and design firms, and real estate development companies and builders.

The attorneys in our Woodlands office handle all aspects of corporate representation and business litigation, with a particular emphasis on commercial and energy litigation, public reporting, public offerings and private placements of securities, environmental litigation and regulatory compliance, project finance, public finance and other matters.
