“GSA: Efficiency Innovations and Financial Constraints”

May 19, 2014
Teleconference

On May 19, at 12 p.m. ET, Roger Feldman will moderate a teleconference of the ABA Committee on Government and Private Sector Innovations entitled “GSA: Efficiency Innovations and Financial Constraints.” The Federal Government owns or leases six times all of the office space in Manhattan. Dorothy Robyn, the former Commissioner for Public Building Service of the Government Services Administration (GSA), and Deputy Under Secretary of Defense for Installations and Environment of the Department of Defense and Lester Shepherd, Chief Architect at the GSA, will address the crisis of deteriorating condition and energy inefficiency in government facilities, the modifications of Federal budgetary regulations and the technical innovations needed to overcome that crisis.
